This November marks the 100th anniversary of the Armenian Genocide. And although the Turkish state has consistently denied the crime, the truth of the atrocities remains undeniable. Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan recently announced that he plans to move the Republic of Turkey's seat of state from Istanbul to Ankara at the end of 2019. In a speech delivered on Sunday, Erdogan said that such a move would be a'symbol' that Turkey was undergoing a process of transformation, but refused to say whether it would herald the end of his 20-year presidency. Meanwhile, the escalation of attacks by Turkish forces on Rojava is becoming increasingly clear
