Scott Fogler's Elements of Chemical Reaction Engineering has been the world's dominant text for it. Q: How to execute List in python? data = json.loads(open(filePath, 'r').read()) data = data['results'] I have this data array, but what I want to do is to execute it and run the thing from the top. Any idea how do I do that? I only know how to convert it into a string. A: data = json.loads(open(filePath, 'r').read()) Open filePath and get content as string data = data['results'] Split data by ',' and get the second element of the list print(data[1]) If you want to store this in a variable, this is possible but it is not in any pythonic way data = json.loads(open(filePath, 'r').read()) x = data['results'] y = x[1] Q: How to simplify this class with constructor parameters in C# I have a class with four parameters, which represent the input of a transformation. Now I think it would be easier to use a constructor instead 3e33713323
