I am starting to learn photoshop, but one of the things I hate about retouching is that.Q: Push to github and gitosis does not contain my files I was working on a new repo for my project and created a branch and started working on it. I was committing my files to bitbucket and working on a remote branch of my master repo. I was synced and everything was working fine. I stopped working on the remote branch and started working on my local repo. When I stopped working on my remote branch and started working on my local repo, I saw that all my files were missing. They were not present in my local repository. I tried pushing to github and when I did that, I saw that my files are not present in the gitosis repository. I have no idea how this happened. My files were present in the server for a long time, and my git repo was syncing with my bitbucket repo and working fine. Then, I created a local branch and started working on it. Then, I pushed my files to bitbucket and stopped working on the local branch. Then, I committed my changes to the local repo. After that, I tried pushing to github and the files were not present in the gitosis repo. The files are still present in the server.
