sulfation regulates the activity of recombinant S-1 as well as native S-1 from bovine submandibular

glands. S-1, a major component of the endogenous inhibitor of angiotensin-converting enzyme (ACE), was purified from bovine submandibular gland. About 10 mg of recombinant S-1 (r-S-1) protein was obtained from 1 L of culture of Escherichia coli transformed with a T7 promoter-driven cDNA encoding mature S-1. r-S-1 was purified by conventional procedures, and analytical and electrophoretic studies revealed that its oligomeric form was an alpha 2 heterotetramer. r-S-1 was enzymatically active, showing almost the same KM as ACE. In contrast, native S-1 (n-S-1) purified from bovine submandibular glands exhibited no enzymatic activity, although it had a similar molecular mass to r-S-1. r-S-1 was phosphorylated more efficiently than n-S-1 on tyrosine residues by protein tyrosine kinase. r-S-1 was more sensitive than n-S-1 to tyrosine-phosphatase and was more stable in terms of tyrosine phosphorylation to n-S-1 at acid pH. The NH₂-terminal sequence of r-S-1 was identical to that of n-S-1, and the COOH-terminal sequence of r-S-1 was consistent with the predicted amino acid

Sami Fayyad, who had been on duty, was standing outside his home when he was hit by a car laden with explosives, a source told AFP. It was not immediately clear who had carried out the attack. "The blast went off as the general was leaving his house," an army source said. "His death is a great loss to us. He was a patriotic figure who was respected by all sides." General Fayyad was the last Lebanese Christian general in the army and for decades was seen as one of the country's most powerful figures. He was in his late 80s and was accorded the same honorific title that his late ancestor Taniyeh Bey had been given by the Ottoman emperor Abdul Hamid. Fayyad, also known as the Lion of Beqaa, was a Christian Maronite officer who helped negotiate the end of the 1975-1990 Lebanese civil war, according to reports. Lebanese President Michel Suleiman has called for national unity to mourn the death of his longtime comrade. "Let us not do anything
