The technical details The input data created by the Motion Profiles is integrated into the gameplay engine, and used to make all components of the player model interact with the environment in more realistic and detailed ways. The algorithms used by the engine to create dynamic simulations around players are also based on motion capture data, and are therefore more effective at maintaining the tempo of the match. Three things, three systems The first aim of FIFA 22 is to highlight the three key aspects of player – that is, ball, environment and opponent – dynamics using three systems: Ball System: the system that allows the ball to interact with the environment in more natural ways by creating new and unpredictable ball movement based on the player’s actions, the position of the ball and the intensity of the contact. Ball System II: this system is designed to give the player a much greater feeling of the ball – how it feels, what it can do and where it can go, thanks to new contextual behaviours from the environment that complement the game’s quality of life and the fact that it now includes an accurate ball physics engine. It also emphasises control of the ball and the player body with increased speed. Opponent System: this system allows players to have a feeling of control over their opponent by adapting to their actions – altering the direction of the pass, the way the ball is played, which angles it is played and how the attacker uses the space. The player also feels the influence of the game’s interactive component with the addition of new behaviours to the world, where the user can see the result of his actions. To achieve all this, FIFA has three main pillars. 1. The ball: this system is the heart of the game, and is where every action of the user is given a visual representation that can be analysed. This allows for a greater level of complexity and for more realistic dynamics. 2. The players: this system represents a deep understanding of the game, and raises awareness of how it behaves in the real-life context. It allows FIFA to become a more complete product that offers a sense of reality, and better gives the players the chance to become more immersed in the game. 3. The environment: this system focuses on what happens around the players, placing the attention on environmental features that can affect their player model. How does it work? These three systems are interlinked, and their interactions are what give the player a

Features Key:

- In career mode, the new "HyperMotion Technology" uses motion capture data to help you dominate the pitch in your single and multiplayer games.
- Players now feel and move exactly how they would in the real world. Changing formations, substitutions and even defensive tactics take place on the fly, where players make decisions off the ball and counter-attack at real-world speeds.
- Choose your starting position to run down a shot or make your running return better.
- Use your new shooting and dribbling controls to take on your defender, off the ball.
- We've all been waiting for more opportunities to control defenders with your touch and even slow-motion run moves.
- Adjust your skills with a new Touchscreen Finishing feature, which also allows you to record your game actions.
- FIFA 22 brings a new Attack Tactics system that lets you use sightlines, split from your markers, or sneak past your defender.
- MOTION-CAPTURE TECHNOLOGY.

FIFA (FIFA Soccer) is the world’s best-selling soccer video game franchise, and EA SPORTS FIFA 22 will build on that success, bringing the exhilarating action of the world’s top players, teams and leagues to your TV or computer. FIFA at Home? The FIFA franchise has set the bar in its home market, and it’s time to see what happens when you take that franchise to a new market. EA SPORTS FIFA 22 does that and more with a host of features and improvements designed specifically for the US market. Play Better Rounding out the all-new Authentic Player Model technology are changes to the dribbling, passing and shooting mechanics. You can now alter the exact angle of the ball with the left analog stick or hit a triple-step pass by tilting the left analog stick to the left or right. (The analog stick can be used for all passing, shooting and ball control.) Direct passing is easier, especially when sprinting, and you’ll be able to hit a precise first touch pass with an approach that takes pace into account. There are more than 170 new animations, including new animation for slide tackles and better responses to head contact. You’ll no longer be stuck looking the wrong way when you’re caught offside. Players react naturally to contact and small objects and players will better deflect shots, and the ball will realistically make the turn when shot and headed toward the goal. Play Better when Alone EA SPORTS takes social into account when thinking about player movement. When you’re playing without friends, the game uses a new AI Buddy Pass system, which gives players in your squad smart and accurate passing, running and shooting. It’s now more important than ever to keep tabs on the entire match, and Smart Touch can help you do that, letting you approach opponents and teammates as you would an opponent, with responses based on their movement. Facebook Connect Social integration has never been more powerful as you’re able to bring your social network friends into your FIFA gameplay online. You can challenge your friends or meet new fans from the EA SPORTS FIFA community, and with the new Emotional Connection technology, you’ll feel connected to your friends, even when you’re not playing. There’s so much more to come, including: New Match Day Moments Video from be9d6d6daa
